

Note where the book of Job falls in the chronological story of the God Story. Apart from Genesis 1-11, Job may be one of the most ancient books. It tells a non-Hebrew story of how men and women from any century or culture will find God.

Humility is the Door to the Kingdom, and suffering is a huge tool in God's chosen arena for glory: the arena of faith!

We would place the book of Job somewhere around the events of the Tower of Babel up through the time of Abraham. After all, not even Abraham was chosen because he was a Jew - he was made the father of this great, spiritual nation by none other than the Lord God of the Angel Armies!
